ICCLR Open House

Vancouver, October 24, 2011 – The International Centre for Criminal Law Reform and Criminal Justice Policy (ICCLR) held an Open House at its new offices at Allard Hall. UBC law faculty, students, staff and legal professionals were in attendance and had the opportunity to become acquainted with the work and types of projects that ICCLR's associates and staff engage in.

In addition to ICCLR staff, representatives from the Department of Justice and the International Society for the Reform of Criminal Law (ISRCL) were in attendance, providing UBC law students with the opportunity to engage in lively discussions about current issues and initiatives at the forefront of the international legal world and learn about various pathways to working in the field of international criminal law.

ICCLR hopes to continue to enhance their relationship with UBC law students by engaging interested students in volunteer opportunities. Areas of research where law students may have the opportunity to assist ICCLR associates include the Elimination of Violence Against Women (VAW) programme, Anti-corruption initiatives and the current status of piracy and slavery in international law.

Over the next few months ICCLR will be hosting several lunchtime discussions providing more details about the above volunteering opportunities as well as current issues in international criminal law for interested law students and faculty to participate in.
